Run What You Brung

Deus is a brand that likes to keep its horizons wide. It makes motorcycles, surfboards, bikes, coffee, music, and more. The many branches of the brand's tree come together at the Temple of Enthusiasm in the Balinese village of Canggu. A cluster of buildings surrounded by lush green paddy fields, the temple is home to a motorcycle shop, surfboard shaping bays, photo studios, Thai fusion food, and ice-cold cocktails. Visitors can relax on giant beanbags in the courtyard or head for the beaches, where they will find surf breaks to suit any and every appetite. If you like grease on your hands, salt in your hair, and resin stuck to the soles of your shoes, this is your place of worship.

Deus ex Machina
(god from the machine),
founded in Sydney, quickly became a shrine to
"run-what-you-brung."
