If You Could Read a Surfer's Mind

A digital artist based in Spain, Naro Pinosa specializes in producing collages that are witty, absurd, shocking, and capable of making viewers doubt their own eyes. His wave-inspired works somehow achieve the perfect marriage between the rough, unpredictable contours of the ocean and the smooth, familiar lines of the human form. It is not hard to see the parallels with surfing in that, and it seems fair to wonder whether Pinosa is merely showing us what we would see if we could peer inside a surfer's mind. How long it takes him to find the fitting visuals is anyone's guess, and the patience and skill that the work must involve makes these already deeply captivating images even more fascinating.
