A hiker's three heaviest items are usually the backpack, the sleeping system (bag and mat), and the shelter. While minimalists may embrace the prospects of sleeping in a hammock or under a tarp, others may not want to abstain from the enclosure of a tent. For the latter, Danish outdoor company Nordisk created its Telemark series of ultra-lightweight tents. A recent recipient of the Red Dot Design Award, the Telemark combines state-of-the-art technology and decades of dealing with Scandinavia's harsh outdoor climate to achieve a superb combination of design, form, and function. Boasting a weight of only 880 g, the single pole tent unfolds from a pack size of only 12 x 35 cm to an interior of 220 x 135 x 100 cm. With practice it can be pitched in less than four minutes. Having been a name in the European outdoor industry for a long time, Nordisk's comprehensive product range includes tents, sleeping bags, backpacks, and other outdoor gear.
