

Wood & Faulk

Ever been out and about and in need of a quick bite or a spontaneous sit down? Wood & Faulk might have the solution. Inspired by the old and the new, the classics and the future classics, the Portland-based company brings together functionality and aesthetics through the unique vision of its maker. Owner Matt Pierce launched Wood & Faulk in 2010 as a blog for documenting his projects, ideas, and do-it-yourself creations. It has since evolved into a small company where Matt and his supporting team of three handcraft and sell limited-run products derived from the blog and items used in the workshop. The iconic Camp Stool, derived from one of Pierce's first and most popular DIY projects, the inventive Heritage Charcuterie Sheath for carrying a knife and sausage, and the do-it-yourself cheeseboard are just a few of the highlights.
