

During the journey, Katjana and Tobias met other families with a shared love and respect for the natural world. Those encounters emboldened them in their own parenting ethos and their commitment to “showing our child what’s really important in life.”