

Previous pages
Despite its very contemporary elevation and increased height, the new house remains unobtrusive when viewed from across the street.

Current pages
On the ground floor, the front and end walls are almost entirely glass. Opened up, they extend the living space considerably—out toward the street and into the courtyard garden at the rear.

