

Left: From above, the Second Home offices in Los Angeles resemble a huge group of yellow lily pads.

Top right: With its curving walls, the shared work spaces provide an energetic and inspiring environment to work in.

Bottom right: Twisting acrylic window walls bring the verdant gardens closer, bringing more plant life into the workplace.

If you want to measure a city for its value, just count the amount of trees that have been planted. They are not just beneficial, they are fundamental.

—José Selgas

