

The construction of two new wings of hotel suites has finally facilitated the restoration and reuse of this iconic structure, without detracting from Saarinen's original design. The painstaking renovation project required the sourcing of matching materials to repair the original finishes, including the distinctive penny tiling to the undulating surfaces.

