

Southern Brittany, a place recognized for its charming villages and breathtaking nature, is home to La Forêt-Fouesnant. Here, a man-made wall was built into this naturally rocky area to partially block the water and create a small swimming alcove.