

“The horses were her priority. She always took care of them first, washing them down before making camp. Building a fireplace with rocks and logs, she would picture the place as her home, then pitch the tent and corral the horses for the night.”

