

The house's interior is purposely left minimal, allowing for the exuberance of the outside world to shine.