

Private Space

Light partition walls separate the rooms into two areas. The whole building is designed so it can be reconfigured from two apartments into four, accommodating changing demands over time.

Private Space

The building does not have one specific communal space for group encounters. Both apartments within the structure have large living spaces and balconies with views of Amsterdam.

Connections

The dining area features a single-wall kitchen, warm timber, and a long wooden dining table. This zone shows how multiple parts of the home are joined by the sculptural staircase.
