

Removing the internal partitions of the existing 7 m-tall (23 ft) barn reduced the existing structure to a skin, into which new openings have been made to better serve the activities taking place inside. These glazed insertions give a sense of lightness to the old building, which appears to glow from within at night.

