

Automatic Egg Boiler

Tefal | Model No. 39907
France, 1976

Tefal's mid-1970s egg boiler followed a typical design: a charming little circle where eggs fit together snugly as though back in the nest. It's made of a robust plastic shell in '70s orange, with a transparent brown covering and the logo emblazoned on the lid. The one slight difference with this version is that it has a handle in the center, rather than the more common placement on the side. Other brands sold this same product in a selection of colors.
