

← Designed by Icelandic architectural firm Basalt, the entrance dramatically opens up to the ocean with a terrace that wraps around the five interconnected infinity pools.

→ The water in the GeoSea baths comes from both the land and sea and continuously circulates so it does not require chlorine.

The setting—perched on a steep cliff—is peaceful. Locals with kids in tow often stop by after work to bob in the restorative water, enjoy a Husavik Öl beer, and spot whales and puffins in the distant bay.