

KIM JONES Is Menswear's Leading Cultural DJ

Between his early design years as a Central Saint Martins student and his current position as men's artistic director at Dior, Kim Jones has disrupted menswear in more ways than one. His pioneering ability to cross-pollinate streetwear with high-end fashion has catalyzed the unification of the two once-distant worlds.

My first luxury piece—
"A fluorescent orange Louis Vuitton laptop case from Spring/Summer 2001."

What luxury means to me—
"Luxury for me is something timeless and the best it can be. I like personal luxury and things that you can make your own."

Above: A jacket from the Dior Men Pre-Fall 2019 collection featuring a floral print designed by Japanese artist Hajime Sorayama.