

The floor plan of the house illustrates how the front elevation projects out from the rear elevation by several feet in each direction, the whole building following the lie of the land.

